

Class of 1980 Will

We, the class of 1980, being of the greatest intellect and the most noteworthy personages ever to pass through these portals, hereby bequeath and bestow some of our most noble attributes and our worldly possessions to those henceforth, who will walk these long corridors, so they will not falter and fail without our dexterous guidance.

Brenda Crane and Kay Donaldson will Kelly Spickelmaire and Lori Gial the ability to get their hair wet and live through it.

Micky Alley, Andy Murdy, and Daren Fales will their cars to anyone who will take over their gas bills, driving records, insurance rates, and friendly relations with County Officers Joe and Guy Arnsen.

To John Burris, Dean King wills his baseball position, so he can be known as Johnny "Bench".

Chuck Rauch wills all upcoming wrestlers the ability to go to parties and drink straight water.

Joan Ackerman leaves the bodily remains of her loyal car, Betty, to Robin Elfred who contributed most to her destruction.

To the Freshman Class, Alan Alderman wills his complete collection of Playboy magazines, so they will better understand the female anatomy.

Kita Haener wills her gray hair to anyone who wants to go through high school with the title "Grandma."

Tom Rose wills his slightly used basketball shoes to Mrs. Girard so she can run up and down the halls quicker and quieter.

To anyone who has trouble finding the gun, Sheri Newby wills her ability to turn sideways, stand, sit and laydown, without finding her shadow.

Kevin Stumper wills his letterman's jacket to anybody who has the stamina to pack it around.

To anyone daring enough to attempt it, Cathy Winkes wills her ability to survive a full, 180 day school year of Mr. Stidham.

Paul Harmon wills his baseball game socks that have never been washed, to Bryan Cox, knowing Bryan won't wash them either.

Chris and Jackie Paul will Soaya and Lisa Paul the will power to cut down on those Saturday night strolls on Main Street.

Mark Walsingham wills his dirty, messy locker to the highest bidder. If there are no bids, he requests it be made a national monument.

To Ed Schwehr, Linda Zuswalt wills her huge nose sword, and hopes Ed will find his true identity with it as she did.

Nikki Fortala wills his grooming utensils and the title "Hair-do" to Craig Robinett and all others who will uphold the Fortala tradition of neat, properly placed hair.

To Colleen Frei, Susan Fellows wills all the fun and agony she had running those 440 dashes.

Tom Newby wills his ability to pump gas before school, between classes, at noon, and after school to anyone with as much dedication as he had.

To the new varsity cheerleaders, Lori Arnsen, Malani Pales, and Christa Hard, Sue Leuck wills the ability to say no to the football and basketball players when they complain about not getting enough "treats" before games.

Dave Biewert wills one heavily damaged green Volkswagen to Danny Bruce so that the next time Danny wrecks, nobody will notice.

To the next person caught skipping school, Backy Robinson wills the "Backy Robinson Bus Washing Service", and all the sponges that go with it.

John Schmadeka wills his reserved seat in traffic court to anyone who can't bear to miss an episode of "All My Tickets."

Cory Theoren wills his high-heeled shoes to Tom Rogers, so Tom won't have to look at any more zippers.

Anne Green wills the keys to her trusty old Cutlass to the Junior Class, to have and to hold till abolition splits them apart.

Mike LeDuc wills his crusade to eradicate disco from the face of the earth to any dedicated acid rocker-

Megan Copper and Kristy Soltman will their "Go to Hell World, I'm a Senior" shirts to Wendy Trottier and Christy Proffit, knowing Wendy and Christy will perform the dirty duties that go with it to the utmost of their ability.

So he can get good grades in home ec by building picture frames for Mrs. Spengler, Bill Vavra wills his picture frame patterns to Kevin Zumwalt.

Melanie Suhr wills her attendance record to Lori Newson, so Lori won't have to work so hard to establish one of her own.

James Huntley wills his highly intellectual scientific analysis of hot lunch to anyone who can describe it as well as he could.

So next years accounting classes won't have to suffer from so much glare, Tsunia Thompson wills some of her hair to Mr. Suhr to cover his bald spot.

Jerry Johnston wills Mr. Arnzen a list of phrases and a record of soft music to use over the intercom, so he won't send so many students into cardiac arrest with "MAY I HAVE YOUR ATTENTION, PLEASE."

Shonda James wills Trens Foltz a years supply of peanut butter and jam sandwiches for all those lonely Friday and Saturday nights.

To Lora Kauffman, Bonnie Cox wills a crash course in driving so she can further improve her wrecking skills.

Jeff Payne wills his ability to understand and appreciate all his clever and witty jokes to those unfortunate few who don't understand them.

To the metals shop, Brian Newson wills his right knee, knowing they have the technology to rebuild it--better, stronger, faster than it was before.

Katalie Johnson, Tanny Hausladen, and Mike Curnes wills all their popcorn, pop, and cool-aid to Mrs. Chedacy and the next Spanish III class, so they will enjoy those Spanish movies as much as they di, even if they don't understand them either.

Dabbie Zehner wills all her personal possessions to Lori Gini, since Lori is so fond of them anyway.

Dion Heckman wills his Bell Beck Memorial Track sweats to Todd Marek, Brad Hauger and Mike Fredrickson.

To all the girls in the future years who deserve it, Rosanna Loos wills her last name.

Scott Swearingen wills himself to the Jr. Class because he's heard life ends after high school and he's too young to die.

Carla Edwards wills her "Seniors do it Better" tee-shirt to any junior, but she needs it back in four years. (She hopes)

Joel Hooper wills his motor cycle stuntman ability to Ty Reuter so Ty can wipe his body across the pavement in front of the whole student body as Joel did.

Ken Ackerman wills the Ackerman Ambulance to Ty Reuter to use after he puts on a Joel Hooper riding exhibition.

To Janet Wessels and Brad Hauger, Sharon Wessels wills her Rambler with the reclining seats, so they can travel in style. Sit Back and Relax!!

Jeff Winkler wills his "Body Beautiful" to all the deserving GHS girls. Eat your heart out girls.

To any deserving Junior Miss candidate, Evelyn Sanderson wills her nickname "Buckwheat."

Clark DeArmon wills his high intensity on the basketball floor to Joe Lothapeich along with at least one radical facial expression, so Joe won't have to go through another entire season without one.

Mike Curnes wills his coveted position of yearbook co-editor to any upcoming senior who can successfully meet the following requirements: (1) Must be able to acknowledge and/or ignore yearbook deadlines. (2) Must not be employed elsewhere. (3) Must be willing to do much or all of the work task at home, and (4) Must be able to brown-nose the advisor by taking interscholastic speech.

Carol Ebert wills her "snake skin" from her sunlamp to anyone who is dumb enough to use one.

Mike Stolley wills his brain to Science, since for four years it's gone practically unused.

Debbie Frei wills her blond hair to her little sister Donna, since Debbie has proved blondes have more fun!!

Tracy Bush wills the "Tracy Franklin Bush Award" to anyone who meets the requirements of, a 1.5 GPA, be an acid rocker, have one pair of army surplus combat pants, and be an all around wild and crazy guy.

To JoAnn Cole, Lynn Westberg wills a year's supply of Vaseline Intensive Care Lotion, so JoAnn can prevent "Chapped Lips" in the future.

Diane Arnzen and Jody Vrieling will to any future freshman their experience of skipping school to lay in the sun, have it start to rain and then find out your Dad is home.

Marty Hulin wills his ability to go through three sets of guitar strings per week, blow a set of heavy duty 6L6 tubes once a month, and to blow anybody's ears who has the gall to stand in front of his amplifiers.

For all the times Karen has lugged Tami Connolly over White Bird Hill, Karen Dreher wills Tami the mileage on her Honda to go on Tami's Honda.

Tami Newby and Susie Owens will their ability to solve algebra problems the easy way to Mr. Rayborn. He needs it.

Lisa Workman wills her chief man, "Dread" the ability to keep up his War Whoop at future basketball games.

Chris Wickstrom wills her nickname "B.J." to Patsy Jones, so Patsy can get ahead in life.

Mary Key wills her late green Duster to Lori Manning and Sue Meinen, so they can party as hearty as Mary did.

John Baffico wills his impromptu speeches to anyone who gets along with speech teachers as well as John did.

Carol Holes wills all the teachers the happiness of knowing they've finally gone through the "Holes" family.

Shelley Layne wills Brenda Frei the ability to find "Mr. Right", and go steady long enough to bribe him to go to the prom.

To Ken & Doug Schneider, Scott Eastland wills some church paneling for their "holy" walls.

Laurie Lester wills the seniors of 1981 the ability to will something better than she just willed.

To Larry "Bird" Stuck, Don Farmer wills his family's bird bath so Larry can enjoy himself on those hot summer days.

Donna Flood wills her nic-name Flood to her fast little brother so he can be known as "Flash Flood."

David Graves wills his tall tales to anyone who likes to make a spectacle of himself.

To Jeff Hilbert, Penny Bennett wills her ability to wreck scouts after parties, since he's off to such a good start.

Don Brockett wills his experience of turning nineteen two weeks before school is out and becoming the most popular guy in school to any lonely junior.

Terry Andrews wills his tire iron to Robbie Baldwin in hopes everyone will leave him alone like they did Terry.

Chuck Walsingham wills his earplugs to anyone who has trouble sleeping in classes with loud teachers.

John Dreadfulwater wills his DWI's to anyone who is as fead of the courthouse facilities as he is.

Larry Workman wills his mother to next years freshman so they can have someone to lead them around.

Susan Zuswalt wills her platform shoes to Darlene DiSarno so she can see through the office window.

Due to serious shortages, Don Solberg wills his eight-five rolls of athletic tape back to the athletic department to help replenish the mysteriously diminished supply.

Mary Ann Bruegegan, Debbie Gortsema, Yvonne Honeyfield, Chuck Hopkins, Marsha Lucas, Susie Randall Paul Rosson, Kevin Tomlinson, and Juan Jarrin decided not to share or pass on any of their many talents to the underclassmen of G.H.S.